

College Faculty Wanted

Individuals to teach part-time at the college level, although a full-time schedule can commonly be created by working part-time at more than one institution. Ph.D. or master's degree required, experience preferred. Openings in almost all academic subject areas. In addition to class instruction, applicants will be required to spend significant time preparing courses, grading papers, talking to students outside class time and traveling to and from classes. When course preparation is included, average hourly wage is $__ for courses taught in the humanities. No health care, subsidized pension or other benefits. No recall rights or any other form of job security guaranteed. If hired, the individual will not be provided with a campus mailbox, telephone, e-mail address or office.

Part-time instructors will have no paid office hours, no academic freedom protections and will not participate in department meetings. Interested candidates should apply by writing to __name and address of your local union__ and include a resume. Appointments will be on a semester-by-semester basis. If hired, it will be necessary to reapply at least twice a year.
