Connecticut Has Third Highest Teacher Salaries

Washington, D.C. – Connecticut had the third highest average teacher salary in the nation for the 2002-03 school year but dropped to 28th for its beginning teacher salary, according to the American Federation of Teachers' annual teacher salary survey released Thursday.

Connecticut's 2002-03 average teacher salary was $53,962, up 3 percent from the previous year. It was edged out by No. 1 California and No. 2 Michigan. Connecticut ranked 28th for its average beginning teacher salary at $28,848, up 8.8 percent from the previous year. The AFT estimates that Connecticut's average starting salary for the most recent school year, 2003-04, was $29,771.

Regionally, Connecticut topped its neighbors for average teacher salary. New Jersey was fourth, at $53,872; New York was sixth, at $53,017; Rhode Island was seventh, at $52,879; and Massachusetts was eighth, at $51,942.

Across the country, teachers' salaries remained relatively stagnant while their share of health benefits rose at all-time rates, making it difficult to attract and keep good teachers at a time when they are increasingly needed, the report said.

Nationally, the 2002-03 average teacher salary, which is the most recent figures available, was $45,771, up 3.3 percent from the previous year, and the average beginning teacher salary was $29,524, up 3.2 percent from the previous year. But AFT's report noted that teachers' share of health insurance costs spiked an average 13 percent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"Exorbitant health insurance costs are taking an intolerable bite out of already inadequate teacher salaries. Teachers are being asked to do more, shortages persist in the most challenging areas to teach, yet compensation packages are insulting," said AFT Secretary-Treasurer Edward J. McElroy.

Furthermore, the AFT noted, superintendents' average salaries are as much as four times higher than teachers' average pay. "States and school districts are crying poverty when it comes to teachers' pay yet somehow find money for extravagant administrator salaries," McElroy said.

California led the nation with the highest average teacher salary for 2002-03, at $55,693. South Dakota had the nation's lowest average teacher salary, at $32,414. Alaska led the nation with the highest average beginning teacher salary for 2002-03, at $37,401. Montana had the nation's lowest average beginning teacher salary, at $23,052.
