

American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO

AFT Teachers
AFT PSRP
AFT Higher Education
AFT Public Employees
AFT Nurses and Health
Professionals

555 New Jersey Ave. N.W.
Washington, DC 20001
202-879-4400
www.aft.org

Randi Weingarten
PRESIDENT

Lorretta Johnson
SECRETARY-TREASURER

Mary Cathryn Ricker
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

VICE PRESIDENTS

Shelvy Y. Abrams
Mary J. Armstrong
Barbara Bowen
Christine Campbell
Zeph Capo
Alex Caputo-Pearl
Donald Carlisto
Larry J. Carter Jr.
Kathy A. Chavez
Melissa Cropper
Evelyn DeJesus
Marietta A. English
Eric Feaver
Francis J. Flynn
Catalina Fortino
David Gray
David Hecker
Jan Hochadel
Fedrick C. Ingram
Jerry T. Jordan
Ted Kirsch
Frederick E. Kowal
Karen GJ Lewis
Karen E. Magee
Louis Malfaro
Joanne M. McCall
John McDonald
Martin Messner
Daniel J. Montgomery
Michael Mulgrew
Ruby J. Newbold
Candice Owley
Andrew Pallotta
Joshua Pechthalt
Paul Pecorale
David J. Quolke
Stephen Rooney
Denise Specht
Wayne Spence
Tim Stoelb
Richard Stutman
Ann Twomey
Adam Urbanski

April 26, 2017

Director Richard Cordray
Consumer Financial Protection Bureau
1700 G St. N.W.
Washington, DC 20552

Dear Director Cordray:

We write to express our outrage over the recent decision by the U.S. Department of Education to abdicate its responsibility to protect student loan borrowers and provide meaningful oversight of its contracted student loan servicers.ⁱ Now that the primary regulator has abandoned its most basic commitment to more than 40 million student loan borrowers, it is incumbent on state attorneys general, state banking regulators and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau to take immediate action in order to clean up the mess left behind and prevent a financial catastrophe on the scale of the mortgage crisis.

Student loan servicers play a critical role in the success, or failure, of student loan borrowers' efforts to repay their student debt. For the vast majority of student loan borrowers, their servicer is their only point of contact when it comes to their student debt and the only source they know to turn to when problems arise. Servicers manage borrowers' accounts, process borrowers' monthly payments, notify distressed borrowers of and enroll them in alternative repayment plans, and communicate directly with borrowers. When these tasks are carried out accurately and in a timely manner, borrowers are able to seamlessly enroll in the repayment plans best suited for them, without experiencing roadblocks that could derail them from successfully repaying their student debt.

Unfortunately, millions of borrowers cannot depend on their servicers to provide this quality of service. In a court filing submitted on March 24, 2017, Navient, the largest student loan servicer, even went so far as to say: "There is no expectation that the servicer will act in the interest of the consumer."ⁱⁱ

With 1 out of 4 student loan borrowers struggling to repay their loans or already in default, it's no surprise that the bureau has experienced a 429 percent increase in student loan complaints received so far in 2017. According to recent research, more than 3,000 Americans served by these contracted student loan servicers are defaulting every single day.ⁱⁱⁱ

The American Federation of Teachers is a union of professionals that champions fairness; democracy; economic opportunity; and high-quality public education, healthcare and public services for our students, their families and our communities. We are committed to advancing these principles through community engagement, organizing, collective bargaining and political activism, and especially through the work our members do.

The bureau continues to report on recent trends of complaints submitted by borrowers about their servicers. These complaints detail widespread servicing failures, including a patchwork of sloppy practices that can create obstacles to repayment, raise costs and contribute to defaults,^{iv} and needless hurdles that borrowers must overcome, such as prolonged processing delays and wrongful rejections, in applying for lower student loan payments.^v

Navient exemplifies many of the worst practices found in the student loan servicing industry. Following a three-year investigation by a bipartisan coalition of 29 state attorneys general,^{vi} the company was sued by the bureau and the state attorneys general of Washington and Illinois in January 2017^{vii} for a litany of systematic illegal and unethical practices. These included: incentivizing employees to encourage borrowers to postpone payments through forbearance—an option in which interest continues to accrue—rather than enroll in an income-driven repayment plan that would avoid fees; obscuring information that borrowers needed to maintain lower monthly payments; failing to correctly apply borrower payments to their accounts; and misreporting the loan discharge of disabled borrowers to the credit bureaus.

This is just the latest of Navient's legal woes. The Justice Department and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. previously reached a $97 million settlement with the company for charging illegal late fees and unlawfully overcharging more than 70,000 active-duty service members on student loans. Even the Department of Education, infamously lax in its oversight of companies like Navient, found illegal practices at Navient's debt collection outfit and wound down its contract.

These problems in student loan servicing reflect many of the same shortcomings found in mortgage servicing, which exacerbated the depth of the mortgage crisis and delayed the economic recovery. The bureau has documented a wide range of complaints about student loan servicers that mirror complaints about mortgage servicers during the mortgage crisis, including payments not showing up in payment histories, processing errors that maximize late fees and penalties, misinformation on how payments are applied to multiple loans, misplaced paperwork that results in missed deadlines, and poor customer service that denies borrowers vital information about flexible repayment options.

Student debt has left borrowers in an even more desolate position than the mortgage crisis. Distressed borrowers who have defaulted on their student loans multiple times will be locked into this status unless they're able to pay the full amount due, an impossibility for even the best-off borrowers. There is little or no chance for bankruptcy or a "reset" to be achieved, at whatever cost to the broader economy and individual families, via large-scale foreclosures and short sales. The wages of student loan borrowers will be garnished for as long as they continue to work, and even in retirement, the government will be able to garnish their Social Security benefits. Their debts will follow them for their entire lives, creating a permanent financial underclass from within the ranks of those who had the grit, determination and ability to attend college.

Given these circumstances, Education Secretary Betsy DeVos' withdrawal of the few consumer protections extended to borrowers is incomprehensible. It is clear that the Department of Education is more concerned with keeping the student loan industry profitable than with ensuring borrowers get the service they deserve.

We therefore call on the bureau, in coordination with the state attorneys general and state banking regulators, to fill the void left by Secretary DeVos and the Department of Education by:

1. Committing to an industrywide investigation that prioritizes making harmed consumers whole, by reviewing the numerous complaints lodged against every servicer and suing companies that break the law. Regulators must ensure servicers and their executives are held fully accountable and should avoid settlements that allow companies to operate business as usual.
2. Developing enforceable nationwide servicing standards immediately. Federal and state regulators should use their considerable authority to ensure servicers adhere to clear standards that protect borrowers against abuse. Already, the bureau has indicated its intent to develop borrower protections. We are eager to see these protections become a reality and will vigorously defend them against the inevitable attacks.
3. Devoting additional staff to policing student loan servicers to ensure compliance with federal and state consumer protection laws, and monitoring the student loan market more thoroughly.

As was discovered through the mortgage crisis, sunlight is the best disinfectant. We ask state attorneys general, state banking regulators and the bureau to make student loan servicers' misconduct public through litigation, so that future consumers and policymakers can make better decisions based on an analysis of the abundant evidence of predatory misconduct in this financial market.

Sincerely,

Randi Weingarten
President

RW : lah opeiu#2 afl-cio

cc: Alabama Attorney General Steve Marshall
Alaska Attorney General Jahna Lindemuth
American Samoa Attorney General Talauega Eleasalo V. Ale

Arizona Attorney General Mark Brnovich
Arkansas Attorney General Leslie Rutledge
California Attorney General Xavier Becerra
Colorado Attorney General Cynthia H. Coffman
Connecticut Attorney General George Jepsen
Delaware Attorney General Matthew Denn
District of Columbia Attorney General Karl A. Racine
Florida Attorney General Pam Bondi
Georgia Attorney General Chris Carr
Guam Attorney General Elizabeth Barrett-Anderson
Hawaii Attorney General Douglas S. Chin
Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden
Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan
Indiana Attorney General Curtis T. Hill, Jr.
Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller
Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt
Kentucky Attorney General Andy Beshear
Louisiana Attorney General Jeff Landry
Maine Attorney General Janet T. Mills
Maryland Attorney General Brian Frosh
Massachusetts Attorney General Maura Healey
Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette
Minnesota Attorney General Lori Swanson
Mississippi Attorney General Jim Hood
Missouri Attorney General Joshua D. Hawley
Montana Attorney General Tim Fox
Nebraska Attorney General Doug Peterson
Nevada Attorney General Adam Paul Laxalt
New Hampshire Attorney General Gordon MacDonald
New Jersey Attorney General Christopher S. Porrino
New Mexico Attorney General Hector Balderas
New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman
North Carolina Attorney General Josh Stein
North Dakota Attorney General Wayne Stenehjem
Northern Mariana Islands Attorney General Edward Manibusan
Ohio Attorney General Mike DeWine
Oklahoma Attorney General Mike Hunter
Oregon Attorney General Ellen F. Rosenblum
Pennsylvania Attorney General Josh Shapiro
Puerto Rico Attorney General Wanda Vázquez Garced
Rhode Island Attorney General Peter Kilmartin
South Carolina Attorney General Alan Wilson
South Dakota Attorney General Marty J. Jackley
Tennessee Attorney General Herbert H. Slatery, III
Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton

Utah Attorney General Sean Reyes
Vermont Attorney General TJ Donovan
Virgin Islands Attorney General Claude E. Walker
Virginia Attorney General Mark Herring
Washington Attorney General Bob Ferguson
West Virginia Attorney General Patrick Morrisey
Wisconsin Attorney General Brad Schimel
Wyoming Attorney General Peter K. Michael California Department of Business Oversight Commissioner Jan Lynn Owen
Connecticut Department of Banking Commissioner Jorge Perez
Commissioner of the District of Columbia Department of Insurance, Securities and Banking Stephen Taylor

ⁱ www2.ed.gov/documents/press-releases/student-loan-servicer-recompete.pdf

ⁱⁱ news.navient.com/pdf/Motion-to-Dismiss-CFPB-3-24-17-AS-FILED.pdf

ⁱⁱⁱ consumerfed.org/press_release/new-data-1-1-million-federal-student-loan-defaults-2016/

^{iv} files.consumerfinance.gov/f/201509_cfpb_student-loan-servicing-report.pdf

^v files.consumerfinance.gov/f/documents/201608_cfpb_StudentLoanOmbudsmanMidYearReport.pdf

^{vi} www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/state-prosecutors-navient_us_57214218e4b01a5ebde47a02

^{vii} www.nytimes.com/2017/01/18/business/dealbook/student-loans-navient-lawsuit.html